

Career of the Week

TV/Film Director

What do we do?*

We create the overall visual and sound effect of a production. We use our organisational skills and technical knowledge to manage the whole production process, managing the production, technical and creative teams.

Subjects & Route*

Important subjects are English, Media, ICT and Film Studies.

You can get into this job through many routes such as a university degree, college course and an apprenticeship.

Candidates who want to enter a course covering video production are expected to demonstrate creativity and good communication and technical skills.

Relevant skills and abilities gained with a video production company are valuable. Having a good portfolio of photographic work, and a showreel of your own creative work, is often essential. Wide experience of the film industry is as important as educational qualifications for this career.

Jobs*

Demand for this career is set to grow by 0.9% by 2027

Average UK Salary:* £50,440

Core Tasks:*

- ✓ Chooses writers, scripts, technical staff and performers
- ✓ Directs actors, designers, camera team, sound crew and other production and technical staff
- ✓ Prepares rehearsal and production schedule

work hard, be kind and amazing things will happen

